

LJS wins top anti-bullying award

A proud Gwynn Smith, Chair of Governors and Mary King, Assistant Headteacher, accompanied by four students were presented a top anti-bullying award at a special ceremony at Middlesbrough football stadium by the Mayor of Redcar and Cleveland.

The Charter for Action Award is given to schools who are able to provide evidence that they have undertaken work to ensure there is effective preventative action going on in school. Laurence Jackson put together an impressive portfolio of evidence demonstrating what has already taken place to combat bullying and showing how this will continue to be developed to ensure all students are safe.

A campaign has taken place to raise the awareness of the problems caused by bullying and the ways in which they can access help and advice. A special effort has been made to provide support at lunchtime for those students who feel they need support.

Officials recognising the good work praised the efforts of staff and the measures that have been adopted to support students.
